

Dral Dragon

Hideous, with squat-nosed faces rimmed by leafy frills, predatory dral hang unseen among the giant ivy that drapes off the cliffs of the Montazi megaliths. Powerful arms allow them to grapple with fruit dragons, their chief prey. Dral are distinctly unloyal, ready to take advantage of any weakness, a reason few young riders will attempt to ride a dral. Dral have the unique ability to direct their dragon fire precisely and over a longer distance than other dragon species, making them deadly in aerial combat.

art by Natz Hawks

Identification

Varying light to dark green.
Wings mimic the leaves of the giant ivy where it hunts.

Statistics

Name: Firraf
Rider: Gomder of Cafertat
Weight: 925 lbs
Wingspan: 32 ft
Load: 220lbs (300 max)
Temperment: Irritable & unpredictable.

...from the fantasy epic Fall of the Dragon Prince. Find your dragon at authordanallen.com