

Fruit Dragon

With strong hind legs and smaller wings, the fruit dragon is the most maneuverable dragon in the megaliths. Subsisting primarily on great ivy fruit, fruit dragons also hunt small prey.

Prized for their loyalty and quick reflexes, fruit dragons are useful in risky battle maneuvers, and have a large second (firz) stomach. The natural enemy of the fruit dragon is the predatory dral.

Statistics

Name: Akara
Rider: Terith of Neutat
Weight: 800 lbs
Wingspan: 25 ft
Load: 180lbs (250 max)
Temperment: Loyal and protective.

Identification

Juveniles are mottled green with yellow stripes that grow with age. Adult females (queens) are gold in color. Adult males (greenbacks) retain a dorsal green stripe.

